

Examination Proctoring Guidelines

1. Purpose

These guidelines ensure that all examinations at Westbrook University are administered in a fair, secure, and consistent manner, preserving the integrity of academic assessments.

2. Proctor Qualifications

All examinations must be proctored by a qualified individual. Qualified proctors include: the course instructor, a teaching assistant approved by the department, a graduate student proctor certified by the Testing Center, or a professional staff member from the Testing Center.

Students may not serve as proctors for any examination, including those administered by student organizations.

3. Proctor Responsibilities

- Verify student identity using a valid photo ID before distributing exam materials
- Ensure no unauthorized materials are present at student workstations
- Monitor the room continuously; proctors may not grade papers or use devices during the exam
- Respond to student questions in a manner that does not provide an academic advantage
- Document and report any observed academic integrity violations immediately
- Collect all exam materials at the conclusion of the examination period

4. Online Proctoring

For online or remote examinations, the university uses approved proctoring software (currently Proctorio). Students must be informed of the software requirement at least 2 weeks before the exam. Students without adequate equipment may request Testing Center access. Proctoring recordings are retained for 90 days and may be reviewed in academic integrity investigations.
